HOAGLAND'S
NEW PATENT SHAFT COUPLING!
W. E. COOPER
HAS PURCHASED THE RIGHT FOR THIS County of the above Patent and will hereafter use it in the construction of all the Vehicles manufactured at his extensive
Carriage Factory,
Corner of Second and Morrison Streets
He respectfully refers to the following
CARD.
Having examined the New Patent Shaft Coupling invented by H R Hoagland we feel pleasure in informing the public that in our opinion it is the safest and best method of connecting shafts or tongues to all vehicles that has ever been used.
It fastens without bolt or screw and is therefore easily and speedily separated. It rests on Gutta Percha so as to be entirely free from the rattling sound which so often disturbs restless horses. It is easily changed so that the shafts or tongue may be detached in an instant, and is convenient safe and secure.
It is easy to change to this style of coupling any buggy or other vehicle now in use and with small expense. We have come to the conclusion to use this new invention ourselves and recommend its use in all cases. We consider it far superior to the Brewster Patent, heretofore considered the best in use.

MONDAY MORNING [illegible] 1869

Unjust Censure of Secretary Boutwell

On the authority of the Ch[illegible] one of the most unscrupulous of the opposition press it was telegraphed [illegible] ago that the Congressman of New York will [illegible] tion of parties were [illegible] Secretary Boutwell [illegible] money panic and [illegible] that he was acting in concert with the [illegible] who had conspired to force up the price of gold. This accusation as we learn from New York papers of the 25th ult was never seriously made or at all events it never came from any respectable source. The press of that city warmly commends Boutwell for his promptness in breaking the power of the [illegible] who had started out with a design of [illegible] gold up to 200. All agree that it was the order from Washington to sell Government gold that foiled the scheme. The Herald in its report of the day's transactions speaks of the reception of Boutwell's timely order and adds

The silly and doubtless malicious reports that officials of the government were to some extent favorable to the gigantic scheme which had just been perpetrated were happily found to be utterly unwarrantable. In this instance the administration was most favorably spoken of by all who attended General Butterfield's office and when quitting the Sub Treasury with lighter hearts than they had entered [illegible] heaved a sigh of relief. With [illegible] which the momentous occasion demanded, Gen Butterfield was equal to the great emergency and when the panic was put an end to he quietly resumed his duties, while the princely merchants who had anxiously assembled near him went their way rejoicing.

The same paper in its editorial comments on the operations of the day in Wall street states that the order of the Secretary of the Treasury had the effect to break up the gambling combinations and says Mr Boutwell has acted with promptness and wisely, we think, in this crisis, in giving relief to the business community.

The Times of the 25th has an editorial which is equally commendatory of the course of the Secretary. It says "The whole gambling fabric, boastingly claimed to have been reared on thirty or forty millions, fell at the single flash of the telegraph from Washington, ordering an extra sale from the Treasury of only four millions. This result although heartily welcomed by the business public and affording immediate relief to trade and exchange, seems utterly contemptible in contrast with the boasts made in the Gold Room within an hour or two of its announcement, that all the gold in the Treasury could be taken up and paid for, and then the Ring left richer than the Government itself." The Times adds

We referred yesterday to the insidious stories employed by this party to implicate the Government in their wicked conspiracy. There was not a word of truth in all that was insinuated against the high officials at Washington and with the known views and policy of Mr Secretary Boutwell, nothing could be more certain than that a gold speculation, resting in the remotest degree upon such premises was sure to fail. More grossly offensive were the intimations from this party that they knew their man at Washington in the person and influence of the President. They had measured his every word and action during his summer vacation and had according to their own story, taken his pledge that he would not suffer the treasury to sell gold. They had not the honesty to repeat what Grant really said on the subject, which was that he was opposed to selling gold for greenbacks to be locked up until after the Western crops are moved. They did tacitly concede that the Secretary of the Treasury was beyond their reach, but the President would control him, and the President's brother-in-law in New York control the President.

The detailed history of this affair shows how unjust was the censure of those persons who were swift to condemn the administration for its action. This censure was echoed in a feeble way by the opposition press of Oregon—not because those papers had any reason to believe that the Treasury was in the conspiracy with the gold gamblers, but because they wanted to take a fling at the administration and were not going to trouble themselves whether their accusations were true or false. The whole history of the affair is this. The gamblers entered into a combination to buy up all the gold that could be obtained for the purpose of cornering those who had contracts to fulfill, and when the Secretary of the Treasury was made aware of their operations he ordered a sale of Government gold and broke them down. This order was not issued as a favor to the "bears," but to protect the legitimate business of the country. The conspiracy did not reach the point to which the actors in it intended to push it, and that it did not result disastrously to legitimate business interests was due entirely to the prompt action of the administration. As it was, but little injury was done to general business. The bulls and "bears" succeeded only in biting and tearing each other and both sides received about the same measure of punishment.

In General

Our columns to-day are largely occupied with accounts from Eastern journals of the late financial flurry in New York. All the papers received by overland mail are full of it and agree that nothing has occurred since the close of the war to produce such prolonged and wild excitement.

The Oregon City paper publishes a two column article designed to show that the national debt is not decreasing! Secretary Butwell's statements, it thinks, are not to be believed. Well, what is there, then, that is worthy of belief? Is it certain that we have any national debt? It is just as certain that it is decreasing at the rate shown in the monthly statements as it is that we have any national debt at all.

The San Francisco Bulletin closes an article on the Catholic school question which is now being agitated at the East with the following judicious and temperate language. All good citizens of whatever religious opinions must alike deprecate whatever tends to stir up theological animosities and to set by the ears a cosmopolitan community that can be as [illegible] kept on good terms by simply letting well enough alone. This is said [illegible] and well.

The other day our erudite neighbor of the Herald sneered at certain California editors for their dense and unpardonable ignorance of the geography of the Pacific coast. If those California editors could see the Herald of yesterday they would be very likely to conclude that geographical knowledge is a commodity which is also much needed in the sanctum where the Sunday Leaders are ground out. That paper has a [illegible] from North San Juan, a town in California which it places under the heading given to news from Washington Territory evidently thinking that the dispatch came from San Juan Island. This is one of the results of the unrelenting war which the Herald is waging on the British power north of us. To show its spite toward Great Britain it includes all British Columbia in Washington Territory and now this spite has carried it so far that it includes a California town also. The organ's [illegible] ness is growing upon it.

The Democratic papers in Kentucky are engaged in a lively discussion about party management and party principles. One of the country papers has discovered that there is after all such a person or thing as an impracticable Democrat, and it describes him as one who mistakes prejudices for principles, ignores facts, struggles for impossibilities, revels in political platitudes, has a remedy for every political evil—generally the same for all, foretells political results with the most absolute confidence and whether he was correct or not is always ready to exclaim "I told you so!" The very picture of an Oregon Democrat! The Kentucky paper describes the species as well as if the editor had summered and wintered in the forks of the Santiam.

Secretary Boutwell computes that at the present rate of taxation our national debt can be paid off in twelve years. He is making such an admirable beginning that we are not disposed to question the statement. Taxation however will probably be reduced and the period of paying the debt extended to twenty or twenty five years.

One paper says "The excessive drought has already been severely felt by the negroes and it certainly seems right that national aid should be extended to them. If this is not done we shall be forced to support them ourselves."

FROM SALEM.—From the Statesman: The tax levied in Marion county this year is 15 mills ... State, 2 school and ... county tax. Last year the tax was 16½ mills. The value of all the taxable property, after all indebtedness is subtracted, is $3 ...

The Supreme Court adjourned Thursday afternoon, having cleared the docket of all the cases set for trial at this term. More decisions of the lower courts have been reversed this term than at any previous one, and the questions adjudicated have been more difficult and of more importance than heretofore.

The quantity of freight laying in the warehouses along the river, is greater than ever before. It is estimated that there are two-thirds more wheat at Harrisburg this fall than there was last.

SUPREME COURT.—The Court on Thursday, announced ... in the case of Chambers and Bowen, respondents, vs Emerson, appellant. The decision of the Court below was reversed, the Court holding that the complaint did not contain facts sufficient to show a cause of action.

... et al, vs Bailey et al, decision of the Court below affirmed. In the decision of this case was involved the ... of the relocation of the county seat of Umatilla county. By a special act of the last Legislature the question of moving the county seat from Umatilla Landing to Pendleton was submitted to the voters of that county. A majority was cast in favor of Pendleton. This suit was brought to test the legality of the proceedings ... the decision is that the county seat is properly located at Pendleton.

State, respondent, vs McBean, appellant. The appellant in this case was indicted for gambling under the ... act, passed at the last session of the Legislature. The defendant demurred to the indictment on the ground that the Circuit Court had only appellate jurisdiction of the offence, and the defendant should have been tried before a Justice of the Peace who alone has original jurisdiction of the matter. The Court below over ruled the demurrer. From this ruling the appeal was taken. Held that the ruling was erroneous. The decision of the court below was reversed.

FROM ASTORIA.—An Astoria correspondent sends us the following items:

There was quite a number of Astorians went up on ... Thursday to attend the State Fair at Salem. Several more go up to-day for the same purpose.

TILLAMOOK.—F J Davidson furnishes the Enterprise the following extracts from a letter which he had received from W. N. Vaughn, Assessor of Tillamook county.

... of the county about 400. Value of assessable property for the year 1869, $60,000. Butter made ... tons. Lands open to settlement, 40,000 acres, mostly ... lands. Market, Astoria and Portland. Mail once a week from Lafayette.

... says that the lands in Tillamook will produce ... grain. Wheat, with an average yield to the acre 30 bushels; oats, 40 do, barley, 50, rye, 20, buck wheat, 30.

SAILED.—The steamship Moses Taylor, Metzger, sailed from this port for San Francisco on Saturday evening with a half freight and the following passengers: Mrs Laura Richardson and child, A J Hubler, A ... C H Kelly and wife, P Fitzbogen, James Craw ... Mrs G Cox and sister, W Cousins, Geo Ganlatch ... Cogswell, W A Messechre, C A Burchardt, J Cook ... (W F & Co's messenger) and 8 in the steerage.

ACCIDENT.—On Saturday last, as the son of Chas ... was coming down the Canyon road, west of the city, with a wagon loaded with grain, he was thrown from ... by a sudden jolt and fell in front of the wagon ... one of the horses kicked him about the face and head, ... of the animals shoe penetrating the skull in the ... of his head. Two wheels of the wagon passed over his body, but—strange to say—no bones were broken. He was brought to town and his wounds properly cared for. Although seriously injured will in all probability recover.

ARRIVAL.—The steamship Geo S Wright arrived from Victoria on Saturday night about 10 o'clock ... wife and son, Col I R Mears, Mrs J W White and son, J J Reid, Miss Clara Myers, C Jordan, Miss Maggie Gray, W Harris, Capt J H Gray and wife, Henry Jones.

CONSIGNEES AND CONSIGNMENTS.

... Portland Gas Light Co, 10 tons old ... McCracken, Merrill & Co, 6 sheep, order; 1 sewing ... Jordan, 73 pkgs sundries, order.

DIVORCE.—A couple in our city who began life together in the merry spring time, as man and wife, but on whose heads the winter of age has begun to scatter his blossoms, have become dissatisfied with each other and taken the preliminary steps to obtain a decree of divorce. Thirty years, lacking less than six months, they have borne with each other's faults and seen their children and grandchildren growing up around them, but after ... of those years they have concluded to go it alone.

ARRIVED.—Mr David Matthie, whose services have been secured in the capacity of Superintendent of the Oregon Iron Works, arrived in this city a few days ago from the East. He is said to have but few equals in the United States as a machinist and for a long time has occupied a prominent position among practical railroad men as an adept in railroad machinery. His family and Port land is to be his permanent hereafter. Such men are really valuable additions to our population.

SECOND CROP.—Many of those passing by the show window of Messrs. Stitzel & Upton on Front Street have observed those long stalks and large heads of timothy. On ... another bunch was placed beside it which ... grew upon the same piece of land this season. The second crop appears to have arrived at a fair state of maturity. Such a production is another index of the prolific nature of our soil and the geniality of our climate.

ON TO THE FAIR.—This seems to be the cry with many of our citizens, and whether Portland will be well represented in the mechanical department we are unable to say, but from the number making preparations to go we presume our population will make quite a showing on the Fair grounds. At the present writing the indications of good weather are propitious.

DEBATE.—We are informed that a public debate on the subject of baptism will take place on the 25th inst., at the Baptist Church in Forest Grove. The disputants are Rev. J A Bullock for immersion and Rev. Wm J ... for sprinkling. The attendance of all interested in the question is solicited.

I. O. O. F.—Fred D. Stuart, of the District of Columbia, Deputy Grand Sire of the Grand Lodge of the United States, I. O. O. F., will visit the various Lodges in Oregon, Washington and Idaho during the present month and before his return to the East.

GRAND SOIREE.—The Soiree given by the Washington Guard last Saturday evening was one of the most pleasant ... of the kind happening in our city for some time. Everybody attending appeared to enjoy themselves to perfection.

FAVORS.—We are again placed under obligations to Wells, Fargo & Co., and the purser of the Moses Taylor ... for files of late ... papers.

EVERYBODY IS NOW SHOPPING these days, and it is just the time to get the Fall and Winter Styles. It is almost impossible to pass the splendid store of KOHN & FISHEL ... Front street without being drawn ... by the attraction of those charming New Suits and the ... of elegant clothing and fancy goods of every description and quality. They have unquestionably the largest stock and best assortment of goods that ... in the ... Miss Kitty A ... New York and sell at ... prices.

REMEMBER.—That on Tuesday evening, Oct 12th, the ... Lodge, I. O. G. T. will give a Supper and Sociable at the Hall on First street, between Yamhill and Taylor. Tickets can be obtained at the door.

A Female Athlete

Several weeks ago several of the young people who reside in the neighborhood of Savin Hill in Dorchester came together and on the spur of the moment improvised a jumping match for a small purse between Mike Flynn and a young man named Murphy. In this match Murphy was badly worsted, whereupon his sister Kate, a bright, strong and sprightly girl of about twenty summers, became very indignant and gave out to her companions that she could outjump Mike Flynn if her brother could not. Kate became very earnest in her asseverations, and to satisfy her a match was made for a purse of seventy five dollars, and greatly to the surprise of her friends when the match came off she won it. This greatly shamed the Flynn jumpist and his friends, so Miss Kate was challenged to another contest for $200 a side, which came off at Savin Hill recently. The affair attracted quite a crowd to witness the sport, not less than 400 people being present. Kate made her appearance dressed in flowing red flannel drawers, a la bloomer, with white merino shirt, and a pair of pretty gaiters tightly laced to her feet. Mr. Flynn was dressed nearly in the same manner. The arrangements being completed the exercises began, Flynn leading off with a leap of ten feet three inches. Kate then took her position, cheered on by her friends, and made the leap, clearing a distance of ten feet four and a half inches. This created great excitement in the crowd and nerved up Kate for something still better. The second leap was called for when Flynn came up to the scratch and cleared ten feet seven inches. This was a very long jump and the Flynn party felt greatly encouraged. But Kate was again introduced, her friends cheering and feeling confident that she would beat. Carefully she placed her little gaiter boots on the line, and straining every muscle in her well knit frame made the leap clearing ten feet nine and three-quarter inches. This was too much for her competitor and amid the plaudits of the whole company she retired with her purse of $400. As this affair has created great excitement in the neighborhood it is possible that Kate may be started for another match.—Mohawk Valley, (N. Y.) Register.

THE EQUALIZER!
Treating Disease by Vacuum
DR. H. A. BODMAN

HAVING PURCHASED HADFIELD'S EQUALIZER and the Patent Right for Multnomah county, would respectfully inform his friends and the public generally that he is prepared to treat successfully those Chronic cases on whom all other ... have failed.

Having used this Instrument in connection with his former practice for about three months he is satisfied that it will accomplish all that is claimed for it in curing Chronic Disease. He does not believe in the system of advertising ... cured, but any number of such may be seen ... at his office, consisting principally of Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Paralysis, Curvature of the Spine, Nervous Debility, Dyspepsia, Weak Chests, Asthma, Narrow Chests, Weak Lungs, Weak Backs, Weak Stiff and Rheumatic Limbs, Sciatica, Spasms, Epilepsy, Palsy, St Vitus Dance, Prolapsus Uteri, Obstructed Menstruation, with all their concomitant ... and all kinds of weaknesses of the Generative Organs, Spermatorrhoea confidently cured in from four to six weeks without medicine.

He uses other remedies when necessary, but the Equalizer generally performs the cure without the aid of any medicines whatever. It brings a greater supply of blood and nutrition to all weak parts, thus creating new life and tone and health, and strength in those parts. It breaks up congestion and inflammation by equalizing the circulation throughout every part of the system.

Give it a fair trial and you will be satisfied with the result. It has been examined by thousands of physicians of all Schools of Medicine, and there has not been one dissenting voice to the correctness of the principle. All ... acknowledge that it fills a vacuum in the Science of Medicine.

PANDEMONIUM [illegible] A FINANCIAL [illegible]

MEN DRIVEN TO INSANITY—UNPARALLELED SCENES IN THE GOLD ROOM.

Special telegram to the Cincinnati Commercial.

NEW YORK, Sept. 24.—A terrific hurricane passed over Wall street yesterday. Broadway, New street and Exchange place are perfect wrecks. Every gold and stock broker wore a pallid face. Moneyed men rushed about the streets as if insane; some of them were literally made insane. The gold excitement during the war and the fearful bank panic of 1857 were entirely thrown into the shade. The dealing in gold absorbed everybody's attention, and stocks were comparatively of no account. The bulls in gold had gained courage, and the gold clique, well satisfied that they stood upon a firm foundation, resolved to make a determined onset.

Yesterday's Washington telegram announced that Secretary Boutwell had refused to sell his surplus gold to relieve the stringency of the money market had been backed up by private dispatches to the same effect. It was positively averred that the distinguished bankers who had urged the Secretary to this course had been met with a flat refusal. The thing seemed to be settled; the bull clique who held all the available gold at once decided that the market should be held to the highest point. The sales at the Fifth Avenue Hotel on the previous evening had given them renewed confidence. They felt satisfied that their ring was too strong to be broken. "We have it in our power to put gold to two hundred and we mean to do it," said one of the operators of the ring. Early in the morning they attempted it, but failed disastrously, through Secretary Boutwell's announcement of his intention to buy in four millions of bonds to-day. The bulls deny that this was the cause of their overthrow; but the fact is self-evident. They had blown up their bubble to its fullest extent, and on the mere announcement of Secretary Boutwell's intention, it burst like a clap of thunder.

Before 8 A. M. both Broad and New streets were filled with outside operators. They seemed to snuff the approaching battle in the air. Their white hats, with mourning bands, seemed to shake with excitement, and they shook their little books in the air as if confident of winning a fortune in no time. Every one had his own little rumor, and industriously circulated it among his friends. "Gold, gold"—that was all the talk. The indicator in front of the Gold Room, which resembles the timeboard at a race course, looked at the crowd in dumb silence; but it was to announce the death knell of many ardent fortune seekers before the close of the day.

At 9 o'clock this morning the bidding began. Up the street, gold was offered at 145, and was snapped up on the instant. Down it went to 144½ in a jiffey, and it was back to 145 within a half minute. The street became intensely excited. Men grew nervous. Up went the precious metal to 146½ at a single jump; then to 147; and, close on the heels of these figures, to 148. A spasmodic yell arose from the crowd at this result. Men began to shriek, and shout, and flourish their little books more violently than ever. The bears on the street made a rally, and back gold went to 147. Another rush of bears, and 146½ was reached. Confusion ensued; everybody seemed to bid and offer at the same time, and 149 grew out of the smoke. In a second 150 and 150½ was reached.

During these outside operations the members of the Gold Room dashed up the Broad and New street stairs and disappeared. It was but twenty steps to the lower gallery. Imagine a little fountain in the center of the amphitheatre; the center of the fountain is a bronze cupid with a dolphin in its arms; from the head of the cupid arises a tiny silver stream, which falls in jets into the basin below. Fancy an iron railing ninety feet in circumference about this basin; then a space of some twenty feet between the walls and the fountain, and you have a rough idea of the Gold Room. On one side there are two galleries, the lower for the errand boys and the upper for the spectators. We stood in the lower gallery. Beyond the fountain, with his back toward New street, stood the secretary recording the sales, which he caught by his ear. Near him is the telegraph operator. Wires run from his machine to nearly five hundred brokers' offices, who are thus instantly informed of the state of the market, and are enabled to make their bids undisturbed by the furious excitement which rules in the Gold Room on momentous occasions. We have described the Gold Room.

At 10 A. M. the Board opened, and the Vice President in the chair. Usually, the heavy gold operators remain in their offices, and base their bids, which they send by messengers, upon the reports received by their office telegraphs. But the magnitude of yesterday's fight drew most of the moguls into the amphitheater, and they entered into the contest with the ferocity of gladiators. Among the prominent operators were Albert Speyer, Henry Clews, Horace Waldo and his brother, Mr. Colgate, of the firm of Trever & Colgate, Messrs. Kember and Heiss, and fifty others.

The fight opened at 10 A. M., with gold at 150. The bull clique seemed unusually quiet. A quarter of an hour passed, and 150 was still the running figure. The Secretary seemed in no wise overrun with business, and the telegraph operator worked his machine and conversed glibly with the bystanders. At 10:30 the situation was about the same, the market standing at 150. The bears were cautious and evidently suspicious that this skirmishing was preliminary to a bitter fight. It was not until 11 o'clock that this comparative monotony was broken; 150½ was bid, and the bears began to win. "Hell's to pay now?" shrieked a gray-haired man, apparently burning over with agony. A hundred fists were shaken at each other over the little fountain, and an infernal series of yells filled the room. To an outsider it was impossible to distinguish either a bid or offer. The bulls had now begun their grand charge. They swept the bears before them like chaff. From 150½, the metal suddenly jumped to 155½. This was unprecedented. Men began to shriek and rave like mad animals. They rushed about the little fountain in paroxysms of fury. The bears gathered in groups, snapped and snarled in turn. The bulls shouted with joy. Within fifteen minutes the premium was forced up to 162½. The bears sold very readily to their own clique at 135 when the market rate was 152. They refused to sell to the bulls at any price. Thus matters stood, when Albert Speyer, a leader among the bulls, threw among the raving crowd the tempting offer of 160. Such a marvelous bid, coming from a dealer known to be fully responsible, startled the whole room, and for a few moments no response was made; but before the thunderstruck auditors could regain their equipoise, Jas. Brown, an equally known broker and agent, offered to supply Mr. Speyer's wants with one, two, three, four, and up to five millions. The latter amount was promptly accepted. The prompt acceptance of this bid, while the bears were selling to their own crowd at 135, gave the bulls renewed confidence. During the two minutes preceding this bid, the market price had stood at 162½, 152, 161 and 160½. Mr. Speyer's bid was accepted under great excitement. The bears, though dismayed, were not panic stricken. Even in the face of Mr. Speyer's bid the premium dropped to 139, but quickly rallied to 160. Again it touched 139, and a third time touched 160.

This wavering is easily explained. A prominent bull, while within his office reading the telegrams from the Gold Room, received a private dispatch from an employee of the Treasury Department in Washington, informing him that Boutwell would positively sell $4,000,000 to-day. The rumor reached the Gold Room just as Messrs. Helgarten & Co., in view of Mr. Brown's success in placing so large an amount at so inviting a price on the market, had offered a million at the same price. Some of this was taken up by other parties, but before the whole was absorbed, the terrible rumor was circulated throughout the room. This instantly paralyzed the bulls to such an extent that the price fell to 155 and then to 150. The next bid was 148, then 144, and, finally, 140.

Then dismay seized the members present, for the decline meant nothing less than the ruin of all concerned in the ring. The bulls had gone into the fight fully prepared to take from $10,000,000 to $20,000,000—so asserts one of the clique. They had not taken $700,000 when they heard of Secretary Boutwell's action. The rapidity of the movement and the magnetic influence of the Gold Room was too much for them. Their heads became giddy, and in a twinkling they lost control of the market. The $4,000,000 threat of Boutwell was but a flea bite, but they were fearful that his movement was a preconcerted one, and that $20,000,000 would be thrown upon them, if necessary to crush the market.

It was not until the rate grounded at 140, that they rallied. It was nearly noon. Gold again began to mount the stairs. It sprang from 140 to 150 at a single jump. The bears acted as if a flash of lightning had passed through the room. Bedlam again broke loose; the room was filled with shrieks and curses. In another jump the metal struck 160. At this point, Duncan, Sherman & Co., let the bulls have a large amount, and they took it in seeming confidence.

Again came the Washington rumor, and this time, it was said, direct from the special Treasury agent in this city. It was asserted that Grant had ordered Boutwell to sell the gold, and that he would order him to sell five millions, if necessary. Away went the market in another rush, and never recovered until it touched 133. In the street it went lower. The bulls were revived; men were maddened; Speyer grew crazy; his eyes seemed fixed in despair, he spoke to his friend in a husky voice, and rushed about the little fountain as if in terror. At length he raised his hand and shouted hoarsely to the beaten, struggling mass below him. This extraordinary spectacle nearly silenced the operators. In a few words Speyer accused some unknown person of an attempt to assassinate him. "He is after me with a big knife!" shrieked Mr. Speyer. "Look! look!" he continued, "don't you see the knife?" As it was evident he was crazed, he was placed in a carriage by his friends and sent home. Mr. Speyer was not the only one made momentarily crazy; one of the members of the Board informed the Sun reporter that under the undue excitement he felt his mind give way, and took a Madison Avenue stage up Broadway as far as Canal street, to recover his balance. The Stock Exchange was deserted, all the stock men crushed in the Gold Room to witness the death struggle of the bulls. During the day, James Fisk, Jr., was knocked down by an angry bear.

Among the individuals and firms reported as engaged in the combination to enhance the price of gold are William S. Woodward (who is reported to be the manager of the movement,) the Marvin Brothers, Smith, Gould & Martin, William M. Tweed, James Fisk, Jr., Peter B. Sweeney and Arthur Kimlor, (agent for Stein Brother, of London.

Among the brokers operating for the clique above named were Eakin, Gillespie & Co., Belden & Co., William Heath & Co., E. K. Willard, Chapin, Bowen & Day, A. Speyer, Chase, McClure, and C. J. Waller.

The Bank of England had ten millions in gold to their credit. The reports were various as to whether it was $10,000,000 or $10,000,000. The name of Richard Schell was quoted as authority.

In the leading Broad street brokerage house we heard it asserted as a fact that the famous house of Baring Brothers, of London, telegraphed to Duncan, Sherman & Co. that they had deposited in favor of the former, and that on this credit the house of Duncan, Sherman & Co. obtained $10,000,000 in gold from Sub Treasurer Butterfield, which was at once thrown on the market, with most destructive effect to the bull party.

A variety of reports are current in regard to the Gold Exchange Bank. One statement has it that the clerical force of the bank was inadequate to the discharge of the immense accession of business which suddenly forced itself upon the institution, and that the operators were therefore unavoidably kept out of their resources. Another report is to the effect that the institution is insolvent. However this may be, early in the day the bank refused to pay any further accounts until they could ascertain the precise standing of their customers and thus virtually went into a state of suspension. How far this precautionary action affected the status of their customers we cannot undertake to say, but we know that late in the afternoon, the report current in the street was that the bank itself had failed. Without undertaking to decide the standing of the institution, we give the reports current on the streets.

The Fifth Avenue Hotel was the scene of the wildest excitement to-night. The crowd there was immense, rivaling even the throngs at the time of the Tammany Convention.

[From the New York Herald's Report.]

The conflict has now been waged for three successive days under circumstances perhaps unparalleled in the financial history of the country. A desperate combination, almost colossal in its form, conspired to make a haul. The attempt was a successful one, but it is well known that the more courageous the thief the better is his chance of escape. The old recognized principle of "honor among thieves" was entirely abandoned, and rogue pillaged rogue remorselessly, just as when two gangs of reckless robbers, each bent on plunder, though jealous of each others' gain, turn from their highway of crime and despoil each other. If the "bulls" succeeded the "bears" were sorry for it; had the "bulls" been defeated the "bears" would have rejoiced. Millions have been lost and won. Satan sits complacently on the unholy spoils.

THE MORNING RUSH.

The intense excitement which had characterized the proceedings of the previous two days was not in the slightest degree abated yesterday morning, and long before the usual hour Wall street was alive. "The great glittering golden calf," the idol of thousands, the cause of sleepless nights, bad temper and anxiety, was raised on high, not far from the towering spire of old Trinity Church. Feverish looking men were seen to humbly raise their eyebrows towards the sparkling god which shed forth its yellow beams in the glorious sun. Some took off their hats and looked up in fear, beseeching the noble god to smile down favorably. Others, winking most knowingly, as if in previous private communication with the calf, asked instructions and went their way, while a large number partly unknown to the golden deity gazed on in innocence, wondering by what process it had been hoisted. The mechanical operation was thoroughly discussed without any satisfactory result, and at half-past nine o'clock the god stood rampant. It was a busy scene—busier and more eventful than many a previous one. The upward strides of gold had created a consternation that was likely to continue, and men almost maddened by fears and hopes of gain braced themselves for the emergency, knowing that at any moment a crash might come that would crush them. Before the gates of pandemonium were opened, before the lines had been regularly drawn in order of battle, men were almost wild with excitement. A mighty crisis was at hand.

HOPES AND FEARS.

The fluctuations in the prices were as rapid as they were sudden. The tendency upwards seemed never to take an opposite course, for while there might be a momentary stay, so far as a fraction went, the gold, nevertheless, rose with steady but gigantic strides. It was feared and hoped besides that the price would reach 200 and men rushed about in the most frantic state. Friends advised friends to rush into the struggle or warned them to keep aloof. When gold was 160 it was not for a moment anticipated it would descend, and the the very fact of its increase fired the crowd to madness. The last faint hopes of many excited persons had now expired, for the great tide came sweeping in, covering the treacherous rocks and leaving no trace behind.

THE EXCITEMENT AT NOON.

The financial cauldron still bubbled with violence. The contagious fever spread through the city. The community almost became bewildered and commerce became at a standstill. There was a simultaneous rush for Wall street, and shortly before noon the entire vicinity was crowded to excess. The entrance to New street was entirely blocked up and men struggled madly through the throng. Messengers rushed in all directions, while brokers, bankers and others along the street jumped bareheaded to the steps of their concerns to witness the scene. Up went the gold and down went the hearts of thousands. Just as at the faro table, winners rejoiced and losers winced with pain. But as the fever spread rapidly not only those directly interested became terribly excited, but the populace caught the fever and were soon lost in hopes and fears. Nor was the excitement confined to the vicinity of Wall street. Gold dials in all directions were surrounded by eager throngs, and as the prices rose the fever became more intense. In fact, so eager did the crowds become that in some places the faces of dials were actually covered with paper. Never has there been such excitement, under similar circumstances, exhibited in this city, exceeding by far that created by the South Sea speculation in London. There was not the slightest effort made to check the decline. The following will show the quotations rendered before noon: 150, 150¼, 150, 150½, 155, 155¼, 155, 155¾, 156¼, 155, 155¼, 160, 160¼, 160¼, 160, 162, 160, 162, 160, 162½, 162, 161, 160¼, 161, 159, 160, 162½, 163.

THE BALL OPENED.

At a quarter past nine o'clock the drama was continued, the actors being exceedingly nervous and looking as if the present was their first appearance on the stage. The financial scene-shifters had everything in readiness, while the members of the orchestra in the Gold Room began to tune up their instruments with remarkable alacrity. A sturdy broker, with an eye glittering like a diamond and not on unfriendly terms with the clique, started the ball by bidding 150 for five millions of gold. The price, therefore, opened at that rate, and eyes were seen to sparkle with delight. A Mephistophelian chuckle gurgled in the throats of some, while terror was depicted on the face of the majority. Consternation immediately prevailed. The news spread like wildfire. Crowds gathered near the Gold Room, and at shortly before ten Fury sat upon the throne Victor Hugo has unconsciously described in his "Toilers of the Sea" the operation of the "bears" in describing the drowning man. After nine o'clock the tide of speculation gradually rose. Wave after wave came rolling in. It rose and the "bear" stood still awaiting his doom in despair. Higher and higher the wave came—gold at 155—and, forlorn, he looked around for help. He cried aloud for aid, but his call was answered only by the wild scream of the sea bird, the vulture hovered in the air, slowly alighting to the form of the gasping soldier on the field.

Oh shame to insult devil with devil damned,

FLOOD TIDE.

As the day advanced the excitement increased. The yellow ore grew higher at every moment and men's eyes glistened accordingly. The Gold Room was the magnet of attraction, all else was abandoned. The revengeful war whoop of the most ferocious Indians, the most terrific yells issuing from a lunatic asylum, could not equal the intensity of the excited cries of the speculators in the Gold Room. Rivulets of perspiration streamed down many a face, while the voice of hundreds were exercised till they croaked with hoarseness. It was a pandemonium ever to be remembered with terror, yet tending in some degree to bring before the mind a vivid picture of the condemned in the lower regions. But the tide still flowed on surely and steadily, with no apparent force to stem it. The water was not defined and the victims await their fate in helpless despair. Truly the scene in the Gold Room was beyond a parallel and that, too, at early as half past ten o'clock, not to speak of the scene that followed.

THE BUBBLE BURSTS.

As the bells of Trinity pealed forth the hour of noon the gold on the indicator stood at 160. Just a moment later, and before the echoes died away, gold fell to 148. Here ensued the grand excitement of the day. The "bears" who had withstood the mighty siege were now jubilant in the extreme, while the news fell like a terrific thunderbolt upon the whole community. The scene which ensued is beyond description. Over the pallid faces of some men stole a deadly hue, and, almost transfixed to the earth, they gazed on vacancy. Others rushed like wildfire through the streets, hatless and caring little for stumbling against their fellows provided they reached their goal. Never was there such a blight. The "bears" had but a few moments before become almost resigned to their fate, while bulls grinned with excessive delight. The tables were turned and the crisis had come. Most people were at first inclined to discredit the statement, but the announcement on the many dials, around which eager throngs quickly congregated, soon gave satisfactory proof of the fact. It was a tremendous descent, so sudden and so amazing as to render many almost speechless. A more extraordinary phase in financial circles could have hardly taken place, and the circumstance was regarded accordingly.

THE CAUSE OF THE DECLINE.

Rumor was wild the entire morning. It was thought that the Secretary of the Treasury would not interfere in the contest. But the high handed manner in which matters were apparently being conducted demanded some notice, otherwise there was no knowing where the end would be. While the fever was at its height—gold at 165—while some men were delirious with joy, and others were going mad with despair, while the community was being disturbed by an unwarrantable and outrageous shock, business paralyzed and the order of things completely disarranged, a telegram came across the wires that was soon to quell the excitement that prevailed. By some inkling the intelligence contained in the all important telegram was spread abroad like wildfire, but scarce had General Butterfield, the Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, received the communication when it was posted prominently on the bulletin. The telegram read as follows: "Sell four millions gold to-morrow and buy four millions bonds. Geo. S. Boutwell, Secretary Treasury." General Butterfield's office had, up to the present been besieged by large crowds, including prominent merchants, bankers, brokers and others, who anxiously remained to see whether any action would be taken. The telegram was received at five minutes past twelve, and probably within one minute the communication was made public to the world. The well-known and commendable practice of the Assistant Treasurer to give immediate publication to such important matter has ever evoked the highest encomiums of our leading business men, and the prompt action of General Butterfield on the part of the Treasury imparted the greatest confidence, while it likewise tended to brighten the commercial sky, which for the time was being sadly obscured by heartless speculators. The large and influential assemblage that remained near the General's office quickly departed in the highest spirits, expressing their utmost approval of the prompt and decisive action of the administration.
